Michael Douglas returns to series TV in Netflix's 'The Kominsky Method'

By George Dickie

In his first TV series since "Streets of San Francisco" more than 40 years ago, Michael Douglas shows off formidable comedic chops as an aging acting coach whose life didn't quite turn out as planned in a dramedy premiering this week on Netflix.

In "The Kominsky Method," an eight-episode half hour series premiering Friday, Nov. 16, the "Wall Street" Oscar winner stars as Sandy Kominsky, a former actor in the autumn of his years whose career and life has seen its ups and downs, including a divorce. Now a respected acting coach in Los Angeles, he teaches his craft to a group of neurotic, eccentric and occasionally clueless young thespans, all the while trying to keep his harsher comments to himself.

His constant companion is his agent Norman (Oscar winner Alan Arkin, "Argo"), a debonair though irascible sort who like Sandy is navigating his later years and the issues therein. There is also Sandy's daughter, Mindy (Sarah Baker, "Big Little Lies"), who works with him at his acting school; and a possible love interest, Lisa (Nancy Travis, "Last Man Standing"), just coming off a divorce of her own.

The series is the brainchild of Chuck Lorre ("Two and a Half Men," "The Big Bang Theory"), on whose relationship with his own agent the series is based. Like many of his other series, it boasts crisp writing and an enjoyable chemistry between its two leads that really makes the series go. "One of the joys of something like 'The Kominsky Method' for me," Douglas says, "is I'm not inherently a comedian but I love comedy. I'm always trying to do it so this is a real chance to work for some of the best in terms of Chuck Lorre and work on your comedic chops. ... Alan's great. He's got good comic chops and I'm able to learn a lot from him."

Also attractive for Douglas was the fact that "The Kominsky Method" is a streaming series, which like with movies is shot without commercial breaks.

"You say it's a half-hour comedy but it could be 25 minutes long or 35 minutes long, each episode," he explains. "So there was a lot of creative freedom and it sort of reminded me of what feature filmmaking was like back in the '70s and '80s, a golden time for me when (it) was more creatively driven rather than corporately driven."

"So I said, 'Yeah, where do I sign on?'" he continues. "And of course, Alan Arkin is a wonderful actor, my co-star, and so I just had really, really good material. It was a really wonderful script — little short scripts, like short little films, sort of like when I did 'Streets' but no commercials. So it was a good experience all the way around."

SAFETY DURING THE HOLIDAY SEASON

Many stores in our area have already started advertising and selling gifts for the holiday season. As that season approaches, it's time to review some tips for keeping your holiday packages safe and secure. Delivery service vehicles catch the attention of thieves and offer them a possible crime of opportunity when packages are delivered. Package thieves almost invariably seek to carry out their crimes quickly, expending minimal effort, while at the same time attempting to avoid detection. The following tips are being offered to prevent residents from being the victim of package thefts and to help in identifying perpetrators:

- Request a drop-off time and date when you will be at home to accept the delivery.
- Use a tracking number to follow your package.
- Request that your package delivery requires a recipient signature.
- Utilize and prominently display your home security system, including video cameras, doorbell cameras, and motion-sensitive lighting. Thieves who are aware that they are being observed and/or recorded will likely avoid these locations.
- Utilize email or text notifications and alerts regarding the status of your delivery.
- Consider purchasing a locking parcel delivery box that can be bolted down or otherwise secured.

• Consider in-store delivery or have packages delivered to a reputable package pickup location, such as Amazon Locker or other business that accepts package deliveries for residents.

• Request that the delivery service leaves your packages at a side door. Back door, enclosed porch or other area where the package will be out of sight.

• If permissible, have your packages delivered to your workplace

• Have your packages delivered to the home of a relative or neighbor who will be there to accept the delivery.

• Ask a trusted neighbor to keep a watch out for your packages and safeguard them until you can retrieve the delivery.

• If your packages do not arrive as scheduled, contact the sender as soon as possible to determine if there is a delay in the delivery.

• When you go shopping, please lock your car and bring your keys with you. Do not leave the car doors unlocked. Do not leave the car with the motor still running. Do not leave your keys in the car.

To report package theft or suspicious behavior, please contact the Bayonne Police Department without delay at 201-858-6900, or call 911 in an emergency.

If we all follow good practices, we can have a safe and secure holiday season.

JEMMA PAWN COMPANY

190 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, NJ

Call 201-333-1441

Story by Karen M. Tylutki

Who is Jemma Pawn Company and what do they have to offer you? Brian Markey the owner of Jemma Pawn Company, established his business in 1986. This business has grown as a premiere loan representative and is officially approved by the New Jersey Department of Banking. Just as Bank of America, Chase and other recognized names in banking, licensed pawn brokers are regulated by The New Jersey Department of Banking. As many contemporary Americans have found out during the recession, a crisis that affected a large percentage of the population in the early 80's, pawnbrokers can and will help you. Pawn broking is a stable institution in time of financial stress and misfortune, lack of sufficient funds to open a small business or loss of a regular dependable income. The records show many people turned down by the banks were helped by a reputable pawnbroker and are now back on their feet again because of their timely decision to investigate the opportunities that Jemma offers you.

Pawn broking, is a profession often branded unfairly by gossip and sensationalized movie plots, and this pawnbroker wants to set the record straight. Jemma Pawn Company has a 95% redemption rate! What does that mean? It is a verification that the item or items people bring to them as collateral on their loan are redeemed by the customer prior to the loans expiration date. There are no credit checks and no application form to fill out. Jemma offers you same day service. An example of their excellence service could be: you bring in a Rolex watch worth $20,000 to pawn and you need $7,000 - you will have same day service. Yes, you will walk out with seven thousand dollars, cash in hand. And you will not have to wait weeks worrying if you have qualified.

Jemma Pawnbrokers follow the tradition of an ancient profession going back 3,000 years to China and ancient Greece and Rome. Poor people would come to the pawn brokers and find them a ready source of three balls signify outside pawn shops? There is a heart-warming story about the familiar insignia above the pawn shop establishments (the three golden balls). This tradition money to help them out during times of failed crops, bad weather, etc. Better still, the government kept their finger on the pulse of the profession by setting limits to interest charged and guaranteeing the pawned property would be available to the customer till the redemption of the loan, which usually extended to three years. Jemma Pawn Company will return the original item of collateral to its owner provided they are faithful in paying back their loan, plus any incurred interest till the obligation is totally met. And to reiterate, 95% of all Jemma clientele, pay back their loans in the stipulated period!

Rest assured, there is no shame in pawning items. You will find you are in good company when you check the records. Pope Leo X, in 1515 gave his official seal of approval to pawnbrokers. The Pope pawned his own furniture and jewelry to support his love of the arts and Michelangelo's Sistine ceiling is but one of the results of the Pope's support.

Many people ask: What do those is generally attributed to Saint Nicolas who stopped a man on his way to give his three daughters as collateral of a debt he incurred. The saint convinced the man to substitute three bags of gold in place of his daughters and generously gave him the gold - immediately.

So hopefully we have answered some of the frequently asked questions and addressed any fears concerning dealing with a pawnbroker! Come in and visit Jemma Pawn. Brian has a staff of seasoned and professionally trained individuals who have specialties in jewelry, which include a great selection of watches. Also, antiques, musical instruments, as well as gold, silver and platinum are here. No seedy characters behind the counters! Jemma Pawn Company is covered by the New Jersey Banking Law.

Hours of operation are five days a week. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Closed Wednesdays and Sundays.

Season 2 of NatGeo's 'Mars' pits science against industry

By George Dickie

It's 2042 and the IMSF has established a colony on Mars. But now it needs additional funding that can be raised only through a partnership with private industry, which supplies much of the drama of Season 2 of NatGeo's hybrid drama/documentary "Mars," which returns this week.

Premiering Monday, Nov. 12, the six-episode second season finds the astronauts of Olympus Town living on and exploring the Red Planet and its mysteries. But to keep the expensive mission going, it partners with Lukrum Industries, which agrees to provide funding in return for the lucrative rights to Mars' natural resources. Which puts it in direct conflict with the scientists at the base.

Season 2 of "Mars" premieres Monday on National Geographic.

That's made clear in Monday's opener, when the Lukrum spacecraft's entry into the Martian atmosphere sprays Olympus Town with debris and sends everyone diving for cover. Tensions are further heightened when the Lukrum contingent's commander Kurt Hurrelle (Jeff Hephner, "Chicago Med") informs base chief Hana Seung (cast returnee Jihac) that they will need to tap into their already limited water supply if they're to be able to establish their own outpost and survive. Needless to say, Hana and her crew — including hydrologist Javier Delgado (Alberto Ammann), physician Amelie Durand (Clémentine Poidatz), Lt. Commander Mike Glenn (Gunnar Cauthery) and engineer Robert Foucault (Sammi Rotibi) — are less than thrilled with the arrogant newcomers.

At first blush, Hurrelle comes off as a first-class jerk, but Hephner explains he's merely a guy doing a job in the hopes of making a little money for his wife and young daughter.

"On a very micro level inside that macro is a guy like Kurt," the actor explains, "and a group of these miners and this corporation who they're going to help facilitate this financially and help with some of the science while they're there, but at the same time they're there to make money and to profit off what Mars has to offer."

"And the documentary side of the show really fits in so well because we see examples on Earth often in our daily life and the creation of our own civil society based on fossil fuels. I mean, that's been an ugly business but it's gotten us to this point. So it's a take-the-good-and-the-bad kind of a moment."

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN

Fall Classics for Thanksgiving

By Wolfgang Puck

"What's the secret to a great Thanksgiving dinner?" With the fall feast almost here, I'm hearing that question often right now as people begin to think about what they're going to cook.

My first answer is the same one you'll hear experts in all kinds of fields give about any major project: Plan ahead! So I suggest that, if you haven't already, start thinking now about what you're going to cook for Thanksgiving.

I also suggest that you put as much thought into other courses of the meal as you do for the turkey. Often, when people think back to their most memorable Thanksgiving meals, the appetizers, sides, and desserts come to mind before the main course. (Besides, in next week's column I'll share with you a great, out-of-the-ordinary way to prepare a turkey.)

So, I propose you plan to begin Thanksgiving dinner with my Fresh Pumpkin and Oyster Soup, served in a pumpkin shell! It will make a big impression, yet is fairly simple to prepare.

Start now so you can make sure to get the right ingredients. For the pumpkin itself, look for a sweet cooking variety, sometimes labeled a "sugar pumpkin" or "pie pumpkin," or for any other good-tasting spherical, hard-shelled winter squash, such as Kabocha or Hubbard. You'll need one weighing 6 to 8 pounds for 6 servings. If you have more guests, just buy more pumpkins, make sure you have a baking pan and serving platter large enough to hold them, and puree the soup in batches. (And if the pumpkins or other squashes are odd sizes or unattractive, follow the recipe as directed but serve the soup in your nicest tureen.)

As for the oysters, buy them from the best seafood shop you can find, choosing only those that are absolutely fresh, with tightly closed shells. I prefer smaller varieties such as the excellent Kumamotos, but if only larger ones are available you can cut up the meat after cooking and shelling. While the recipe calls for cooking the oysters in their shells, if you find it more convenient you can ask the market to shuck them for you, or even buy a jar of the already-shucked fresh oysters that some markets sell; just poach them for a few minutes with the wine, celery, and shallots as directed in the recipe.

For more convenient Thanksgiving planning, feel free to do some of the work in advance. Make the croutons and, once they're completely cooled, store in an airtight container. Cook and puree the soup, and poach the oysters, several hours ahead, too, storing them in the refrigerator and then, before serving, gently reheating the soup and then adding the oysters to warm through before serving.

FRESH PUMPKIN AND OYSTER SOUP

Serves 6

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
6 slices French bread, each about 1/2 inch thick, cut into small cubes
1 cooking pumpkin, 6 to 8 pounds

1 pint heavy cream, plus extra if necessary
1 teaspoon fresh thyme leaves
Salt

Freshly ground white pepper
1 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup finely chopped organic celery
1/4 cup finely chopped shallots
6 fresh oysters, shells thoroughly scrubbed and rinsed clean
Cayenne pepper
Fresh lemon juice

Melt the butter in a skillet over medium-low heat. Add the bread and saute, stirring frequently, until golden brown, 7 to 10 minutes. Transfer to a bowl and set aside.

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees F.

Meanwhile, using a sharp, serrated knife, carefully cut off the top of the pumpkin, taking care as well not to pierce the shell in other places. With a large, sharp-edged spoon, scrape out the seeds and strings.

Fold a clean dishtowel and place it in the bottom of a roasting pan large and deep enough to hold the pumpkin. Place the pumpkin shell on the towel. Bring a kettle of water to a boil.

In a saucepan, bring the cream to a boil. Carefully pour enough cream into the pumpkin shell to fill it almost to the top. Stir in the thyme and salt and pepper to taste. Open the preheated oven and, using a potholder or oven mitt, pull out the shelf and put the pan on it. Pour enough boiling water into the pan to come just over 1 inch up the side of the pumpkin. Slide the shelf into the oven, taking care to avoid sloshing.

Bake until the pumpkin's flesh is soft when probed from the inside with the tip of a small, sharp knife, about 50 minutes. (Be careful not to puncture the shell.)

Meanwhile, put the wine, celery, and shallots in a saucepan large enough to hold the oysters in a single layer. Add the oysters, cover, and bring to a boil over medium-high heat, steaming until they have opened, 5 to 10 minutes. Remove the oysters to a plate or bowl and remove the meat from their shells, setting it aside and discarding the shells. Return the juices to the pan. Line a fine sieve with cheesecloth, place over a clean bowl, and strain the juices, setting them aside.

Carefully pour or ladle the cream from the pumpkin into a food processor or blender, working in batches if necessary. With a large, sharp-edged spoon, scoop out the pumpkin flesh, leaving a 1/2-inch shell. Add the pumpkin flesh and strained oyster liquid to the cream and blend until smooth. Transfer the puree to a saucepan, bring to a boil, and cook over low heat until thickened and the flavors have concentrated, 15 to 20 minutes. Season to taste with cayenne, lemon juice, salt, and white pepper. Add the reserved oysters, cutting any large ones into 3 or 4 pieces, and heat for about 30 seconds longer.

To serve, place folded napkins or tea towels on a platter to anchor the pumpkin. Place the pumpkin shell on top. Ladle the soup into the shell. At the table, ladle the soup into warmed bowls and garnish with the reserved croutons.
