God is not pleased and the world may pay in TBS' 'Miracle Workers'

By George Dickie

Steve Buscemi stars in "Miracle Workers," premiering Tuesday on TBS.

God has had enough.

With climate change, violence, death and destruction running rampant, Earth's problems are multiplying and no one can stop it. And worse, the Almighty would just as soon let it go.

As played by Steve Buscemi ("Boardwalk Empire," " Fargo") in the irreverent TBS half-hour comedy "Miracle Workers," premiering Tuesday, February 12, he's the type of deity one doesn't envision from scripture: scruffy, unkempt, somewhat lethargic and sick and tired of having the world's problems dumped in his lap. As he guzzles beer in his CEO's office at Heaven Inc., he concludes that trying to end world pain is futile and resolves to blow it up and start over.

That doesn't sit well with his prayer answerer Craig (Daniel Radcliffe of the "Harry Potter" movies) and his new cohort Eliza (Geraldine Viswanathan, "Blockers"), who argue that the world is worth saving and they make a bet: They successfully answer a prayer deemed "impossible" (the ones God usually fields) and Earth is spared. Fail and, well

... "God has just been kind of going through this crisis," explains Buscemi, who like Radcliffe is an executive producer on the series. "He's just kind of overwhelmed. He can't keep up with all the problems that are happening on Earth. He's lost interest and he's become sort of depressed. ... He's burnt out and he just is constantly looking for a distraction. And then finally, inadvertently, Geraldine's character talks to him in such a way that he thinks that what she's saying is that Earth is not worth saving. And that sort of liberates him. He really likes this idea that ... yeah, I'm God; I can destroy it and go onto my next project and get really excited about something else."

As Craig, Radcliffe makes a major departure from his "Potter" persona, playing him as a timid, neurotic office drone who is overwhelmed by his job but still tries to do it the best he can.

"He thrives in this environment but taken out of that is sort of a complete fish out of water anywhere else," the British actor explains. "And really Eliza gives Craig a lot of what he needs in terms of a bit of a slap and saying, 'Get out there and be a bit bolder and a bit braver.' And equally, he offers her something of a lesson in how sometimes cautiousness is the right response because Eliza is very front-footed and some of her very well-intentioned actions have very negative responses. And they learn from each other in a lovely way."

Do you have older home concerns or modern home repairs? Avenue C Hardware can assist you in what you are looking for to meet your needs. Sami, specializing in restoration, remodeling and construction work gave me a tour of the easy access store and introduced me to products that this writer didn't know existed! Now I have a solution to an indoor project that no one else offered me and it will cost me a fraction of the amounts I have been quoted elsewhere.

Pricing. You can't beat Avenue C Hardware! Jessica, an owner of the store takes pride in meeting or beating any large "big box" store when it comes to pricing. Some of the prices are absolutely astonishing.

Orders can be placed by phone for contractors and packed and readied for pick up. Avenue C Hardware has a 20,000 foot warehouse at another location, which stocks large items including large fittings and industrial supplies which enables them to fill contractors and plumbers orders as well as individuals. Items needed that are not in stock usually take 24 to 48 hours to come in.

All the products available are visibly and neatly displayed in a well lighted and clean environment, including: • paint brushes of varying sizes, paints and varnishes, etc. • winter products: shovels, salt, gloves and insulated overalls, • hand tools and power tools, • a fully stocked electrical section, • nails, screws, nut and bolts, • a full line of fluorescents up to 8', non-standard and LED light bulbs, • a full line of bed bug products and mattress disposal bags, • janitorial supplies from standard household cleaners to industrial strength, • a full line of brass, black, copper, pex, PVC, , push fittings and tubing, a full line of heating items for both gas and oil, • a vast array or replacement parts, washers and screws for faucets and boilers, • a full line of hi visibility products, • air conditioner covers, pipe covers to insulate your pipes from freezing, • child protection gadgets and innovations to keep your children safe indoors and more... And... yes they make keys!

Trucks are arriving regularly with new products. Keeping this hardware store up to date with what you require.

Avenue C Hardware aims to deliver that old fashioned personal touch service with someone on hand to resolve your home repair needs and problems, whenever you come by.

Avenue C Hardware is open from 8 am to 7 pm Monday through Saturday at 1085 Avenue C. Call 201-339-1900

SCHOLARSHIP COMPETITION

High school seniors and juniors who live in Bayonne are invited to take part in the Louis Bay Future Municipal Leaders Scholarship Competition. The local competition is open to high school juniors and seniors who are Bayonne residents who plan to continue their education after high school. This scholarship is sponsored statewide by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, which is offering three $1,000 scholarships to winners from across the state.

The purpose of this scholarship is to advance the virtues of elected and volunteer positions in municipal government while raising awareness of municipal government in general. The scholarship competition is named in honor of Louis Bay II, former Mayor of Hawthorne, New Jersey.

Qualified students who are residents of Bayonne need to do two things to enter the scholarship contest: 1) Fill out an application form, which is available at the Office of the Mayor. 2) Write an essay on the theme "What My Municipal Government Does Best." The essay should be based on the student's perceptions and experiences with the City of Bayonne's municipal government. The essay should consider the public contributions of your municipal government. The essay's length should be approximately 500 words. Essays must be submitted to my office in hard copy by Friday, March 8, 2019, at 4:30 p.m., along with the application form.

Judging will be based solely on the essay. Please do not include any other information such as transcripts or references. Judging criteria will include the appropriateness of the essay's theme; effective articulation of the theme; originality; technical composition; spelling; and syntax.

A committee will judge the essays submitted by Bayonne resident students. The Bayonne committee will select the winning local entry. By April 1, that entry will be sent to the New Jersey State League of Municipalities in Trenton, along with a list of all other entrants, who will receive certificates of participation. In early May, the League of Municipalities will announce fifteen statewide finalists and three statewide winners. Later in May, awards will be presented to the three scholarship winners around the state.

The New Jersey State League of Municipalities helps communities do a better job of self-government through pooling information, resources, and brainpower. The League has been serving local officials throughout New Jersey since 1915. The highlight of the League's activities is its annual conference, which is held each November at the Atlantic City Convention Center.

A friend depicts Olivia
Newton-John's life on Lifetime
By Jay Bobbin

Being a friend of Olivia Newton-John made it more comfortable for another Australia-raised singer-actress to play the superstar on Lifetime.

Delta Goodrem has her own career — extending to headlining concert tours and being a coach on her continent's version of "The Voice" — but her strongest U.S. identification to date may come from her starring role in "Olivia Newton-John: Hopelessly Devoted to You" Saturday, Feb. 16. Familiar songs re-recorded by Goodrem are used to mark chapters of Newton-John's story, encompassing the latter's bouts with cancer and the disappearance of her then-boyfriend Patrick McDermott (played in the film by Anthony Brandon Wong).

"My first interaction with her was when I was about seven years old, by chance," the pleasant Goodrem says of Newton-John. "My family was on holiday, and my mom and I were having a hot chocolate in New York, and she walked in. And I said, 'There's Sandy! There's Sandy!' (referencing Newton-John's 'Grease' movie character). She heard my Australian accent and came over and spoke to my mom and I, and I remember how amazing that was."

The women continued to cross paths, and Goodrem recalls that when she received her own Hodgkin's lymphoma diagnosis at age 18, "Olivia sent me a beautiful letter, and she became my mentor as well as my friend. We talk a lot about the kindred nature of our friendship, and we've written songs about it. And it's full-circle to have this moment now. It's very special."

Insisting she wouldn't have accepted the role of Newton-John "without Olivia's blessing," Goodrem explains, "I'd just come off a tour, and we had to make the decision quickly. I said to her on the phone, 'Olivia, it would break my heart not to do everything to make this a wonderful thing for you, so you have to say you really want me to do it.' She said, 'All right,' and I said, 'OK. I'm doing it.'"

Having had a recent hit herself with "Think About You," Goodrem performed with Newton-John — who isn't involved in the project otherwise — on a soundtrack for the film, which was acquired from Australia's Channel Seven. Goodrem remembers "finding that joy that I had growing up with the music" in covering the best-known tunes, "and I discovered moments that I had no idea about, so that was really fascinating."

While lending her own technique to Newton-John's songs, Goodrem was determined not to stray too far. "I would never want to dance all over them musically," she notes. "I went into this with an open heart of staying true to the classics, but also appreciating the fact that technology has come so far that we can really enjoy their sound."

Delta Goodrem plays the title role in "Olivia Newton-John: Hopelessly Devoted to You" Saturday on Lifetime.

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN
Plan now for extra-special chocolate Valentine's Day dessert

By Wolfgang Puck

Too many people leave their Valentine's Day planning until the last minute. I know this from the many attempts people make to secure Valentine's dinner reservations in my restaurants on February 13 - or even on the 14th.

I want good fortune to smile on you this coming Valentine's Day. That's why I'm offering you more than a week's head start to prepare one of the most impressive, yet surprisingly easy, desserts you could imagine to make and serve at home to your special someone. (And that shouldn't necessarily stop you from taking him or her out for a special meal, either!)

From the time former Spago pastry chef Sherry Yard first introduced chocolate "purses" to our menu many years ago, guests have swooned over them. You won't necessarily find them on the menu now; our new pastry chef at Spago Beverly Hills, Della Gossett, has many of her own amazing treats she prepares to our guests' delight, and she's busily planning something special for this February 14. But I still hear people reminiscing about those crispy golden bundles filled with chocolate, and some ask for the recipe.

So here it is. There aren't that many ingredients, and this dessert really isn't all that hard to make. But the results truly are something you and your Valentine will remember.

I want to give you a jump on the recipe especially because there's one ingredient you'll need to look for. It's brik (sometimes spelled "brick"), a traditional North African pastry that is the complete antithesis of the image its name conjures for English speakers. You'll find it in well-stocked ethnic markets, and you can also buy it on the Internet. Thin fresh Chinese egg roll wrappers may be substituted. You'll also, by the way, want to make the effort to buy excellent-quality bittersweet chocolate.

Take special care to handle the brik very carefully so you don't tear it while preparing the recipe. The reason: Each square of the fragile dough is wrapped around a filling of rich, thick, dark-chocolate mousse, then baked in a hot oven until the pastry turns crispy and the filling is warm and oozing.

This may sound like quite a feat to pull off, but if you work deliberately, it's really quite easy. And, for the little bit of effort that goes into preparation, the results are nothing short of spectacular.

The quantities in my recipe yield eight servings - certainly more than you'd need at a special dinner for two. But the filling will keep in the refrigerator for several days, so you can assemble and bake them in batches if you like. And I suspect you and your loved one just might want seconds.

Have a deliciously romantic Valentine's Day!

SPAGO'S FAMOUS WARM CHOCOLATE PURSES Serves 8

1/2 pound bittersweet chocolate, cut into 1/4-inch pieces

1/2 pound unsalted butter, cut into 1-inch pieces

1/3 cup all-purpose flour, sifted

6 large cage-free eggs, at room temperature

1 cup granulated sugar

8 sheets brik pastry (sold in packages in Mediterranean food stores and online)

8 pieces kitchen string, each 10 inches long

1 tablespoon powdered sugar, for dusting

Fresh berries, for garnish, optional

Put the chocolate and butter in a medium heatproof mixing bowl. Rest the bowl on the rim of a saucepan filled with 2 inches of simmering water, making sure that that bottom of the bowl doesn't touch the water. Stir the chocolate and butter together as they melt, until thoroughly blended, continuing until the mixture has a smooth consistency. Remove the pan from the heat. Stirring continuously with a wire whisk, sprinkle in the flour until smoothly combined.

Combine the eggs and sugar in the bowl of a stand mixer fitted with the whisk attachment. Whisk at medium speed until the mixture is lemon-yellow and has doubled in volume, about 3 minutes. Reduce the mixer speed to low and add the chocolate mixture all at once, scraping it from its bowl with a rubber spatula. Stop the mixer briefly to scrape down the sides of the bowl with the spatula. Continue mixing until well combined, and then scrape down the bowl again. Cover the bowl tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate at least 4 hours or preferably overnight.

About 30 minutes before you plan to serve the purses, preheat the oven to 375 degrees F. Meanwhile, working one at a time, carefully peel off a sheet of brik pastry from the parchment it's packed with. Lay the sheet on a clean, dry work surface and spoon into its center 1/2 cup of the chilled chocolate mixture. Taking special care not to tear the pastry, gently lift the sides up around the filling, gathering them together like the petals of a flower; then, with a piece of kitchen string, gently tie the little purse shut, securely but not too tightly. Place on a baking sheet. Repeat with the remaining pastry sheets and filling.

Bake the purses for 10 minutes. Turn the baking sheet around front to back and bake until the pastry edges of the purses are golden brown, 2 to 3 minutes longer.

Remove the baking sheet from the heat. With the tip of a pair of kitchen scissors, carefully snip each string and remove it.

Very carefully transfer the warm purses to dessert plates. Hold a small wire-meshed sieve over each purse, spoon the confectioner's sugar into the sieve, and tap the rim of the sieve to dust the purse. Serve immediately, garnished with fresh berries if you like.
