TV PIPELINE

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Are the Beatles' movies ever shown on television? — Rob Emery, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: In terms of the handful of the Fab Four did collectively (each also made pictures on their own as stars, producers or both), they'll turn up from time to time ... but by far, the one shown most often is "A Hard Day's Night," since that's part of the Turner Classic Movies library. It particularly turns up on that channel whenever there's a tribute to music-inspired films or British cinema. Q: It's been a while since "Rookie Blue" ended, so will Missy Peregrym do a series again? — Sue Carpenter, Macon, Ga.

A: The short answer is "Yes," since she's joining the Syfy series "Van Helsing" for its second season. That vampire-saga update gets pretty physical, so Peregrym should be right at home, given the running and tackling she did for six seasons as "Rookie's" Officer Andy McNally. She's been warming up for a full-time television return by doing guest shots on such shows as CBS' "Hawaii Five-0" and NBC's "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" this season.

Q: Is there any chance that Leah Remini will be on Kevin James' new show? — Della Sloan, via e-mail

A: Much more than a chance, since it's happening ... and soon. The "King of Queens" alums will reunite on James' current CBS sitcom, "Kevin Can Wait," in the two-part schedule that will air May 1 and May 8. James' retired-cop character returns to active duty, teaming with an officer played by Remini on a mission that has them posing as a married couple (shades of "Queens").

It's interesting that "Kevin Can Wait" has waited until the end of its season for Remini's appearance, since that's usually the sort of "stunt" pulled out when it can count in helping "Kevin" already has been picked up for a second season, so the Remini guest shots simply come now as a potential extra treat for the show's fans.

Q: Now with "Chicago Justice" on the air, will there be any more "Chicago" shows? — Robin Flynn, Bryan, Ohio

A: If there are others still in the works, executive producer Dick Wolf isn't talking ... but he pretty much has the major disciplines covered with firefighters ("Chicago Fire"), police officers ("Chicago P.D."), doctors ("Chicago Med") and lawyers ("Chicago Justice"). With that said, would we be surprised to see a "Chicago Cab" or a "Chicago Eats" turn up on NBC in the future? Not at all. (And if you hadn't thought of those, Mr. Wolf, you know where to find us to send the commission.)

FX's ' Fargo ' reboots with new characters but same offbeat tone

By Jay Bobbin

For anyone who still may doubt "Fargo" is the stuff of a television series, get ready for your skepticism to be quashed a third time.

The characters change but the quirks remain as the FX drama inspired by the Oscar-winning 1996 Coen-brothers movie begins its 2010-set Season 3 on Wednesday, April 19. Continuing the show's pattern of attracting major film stars, the rebooted saga now casts Ewan McGregor in the dual roles of dissimilar brothers, successful Minnesota realtor Emmet and embittered parole officer Ray.

Prompted by a parolee with whom he's romantically involved (played by Mary Elizabeth Winstead, after her recent runs on "BrainDead" and "Mercy Street"), Ray tries to turn things around for himself through criminal means, resulting in an unintended murder. Police chief, mom and new divorcee Gloria (Carrie Coon, "The Leftovers") leads the probe, while Emmet resists a stranger's (David Thewlis) efforts to cut himself and his bosses in on Emmet's business.

Known for movies from "Trainspotting" and "Moulin Rouge!" to the "Star Wars" prequels and the current "Beauty and the Beast" (in which he voices Lumiere), McGregor allows that he hadn't seen either of "Fargo's" earlier seasons — the first of which teamed Billy Bob Thornton and Martin Freeman and made a star of Allison Tolman (soon to be seen in ABC's "Downward Dog"), and the second of which featured Kirsten Dunst and Patrick Wilson — when he received an unofficial offer to headline the third round.

"I met one of the producers when I was skiing in Utah," McGregor recalls, "and I was chatting with him and he said, 'Have you seen "Fargo"?' And I hadn't, and he said they were looking for an actor to play two brothers in Season 3. So I got home and I started watching Episode 1 of Season 1, and I watched to the end of Season 2 almost in a week, I think. I was pretty grabbed by it, obsessed by it, and here we are."

echoes the role that brought Frances McDormand an Academy Award for the original "Fargo" movie, executive producer (and former NBC programmer) Warren Littlefield says that's part of the design by series showrunner Noah Hawley, who also is making "Legion" for FX. "He channeled (Joel and Ethan Coen) and continues to do so," Littlefield maintains.

"We like the idea that there's this wonderful book that might (be called) 'True Crimes of the Midwest.' Imagine that the Coens' movie might be a chapter, and that each season of 'Fargo' is a chapter from that book. We will have a 'kiss' to Season 1 that we think is appropriate, because we're doing a different film each year. They're related geographically, there are (similar) thematic touches, and we make some character 'kisses' as well. We think that's part of the DNA that Noah uses to honor where we came from, from the Coens."

Winstead admits she was among those who questioned a series version of "Fargo" initially, since it's "one of my favorite movies. I sort of stubbornly didn't watch the first season right away, because I kept hearing it was great and I felt really wrong about being nervous and stupid for being wrong. Then I watched the second season when it came out, and it was so good that I had to go back and watch the first season and just sort of give up on all of my stubbornness, because it was just so brilliant."

As a result, Winstead was "in" for Season 3 "pretty much as soon as I got the call from Noah. I just said, 'Yes,' before I knew what the role was or what the story was about or anything. I just felt really, really lucky for the opportunity to be a part of something so special."

Mary Elizabeth Winstead stars in Season 3 of "Fargo," starting Wednesday on FX.

Turnpike 14A Construction Update

Mayor Jimmy Davis announced that the New Jersey Turnpike Authority and its contractors have provided the City of Bayonne with updated information about construction in and around the Turnpike's 14 A interchange. They also provided information about other Turnpike construction activity in the area.

In the toll plaza itself, concrete paving work took place in toll lanes 8, 9, and 10 during the weekend of April 7. At the conclusion of the weekend, toll lanes 8, 9, and 10 were reopened. Renovation work is continuing at the existing toll plaza building.

At the northern end of Avenue E near the traffic roundabout, deep foundation drilling is continuing for new bridge piers (columns). New pier construction is continuing. During the second week of April, a drilled shaft reinforcement cage will be delivered and installed.

In the ramp area east of Route 440, road construction is continuing on the new connector ramps. During the week of April 10, asphalt paving will take place on the new ramp to southbound Route 440, between Port Jersey Boulevard and Route 440.

For the connector bridge between the toll plaza and Port Jersey Boulevard, new bridge steel installation will take place during the weekend of May 5. The installation will take place over the Light Rail and the Con-rail freight lines. The back-up date for the installation is the weekend of May 12. During the weekend construction activity in May, Light Rail service between 34th Street in Bayonne and Danforth Avenue in Jersey City will be handled by NJ Transit buses.

In the area around the intersection of Route 440 and Pulaski Street, roadway construction is continuing for the new jughandle ramp. Median construction is also moving ahead. Ground improvement operations will continue in the coming weeks.

The ramps between the toll plaza and the Hudson County Extension will be resurfaced at a point to be announced in 2017.

Flowers represent a plethora of different things. Whether you are showing your care, expressing sympathy, or just spreading a little joy someone's way, flowers are a traditional mode for doing so. With this being true, perhaps you can celebrate by seeing Tasha Bondaruk at Blooms for You Floral Boutique where she can help you in arranging a beautiful way to express what you want to say.

Some of you may recognize Tasha from her previous involvement in the flower business. She started at a florist in downtown Jersey City and then moved over to Say It With Flowers in Bayonne, where she was a designer and a manager. Having been there for about 12 years, we Bayonne citizens recognized her dedication and beautiful work. After leaving Say It With Flowers to have her son, Tasha continued working at florists. However, fate intervened when her son was old enough to attend school.

Tasha couldn't imagine a better place to open her own flower shop than Bayonne. After all of the years, Tasha felt that this city was truly home and that it was the best place for her to follow her calling and began running her own floral business.

Pleased to be in business for three years since then, Tasha thanks her customer base from Say It With Flowers as well as her newer loyal customers from Blooms for You Floral Boutique.

Tasha brings back the same cozy allure that she found within Say It With Flowers. She remembers how customers become friends and burgeoned into family. With bringing that to her own shop, Tasha makes her customers her top priority. In order to do so she creates arrangements that speak to their needs. Instead of working off of a picture or image, she wants to be able to get the personality and situation of her customers and place that into her arrangements for them.

Tasha invites anyone who is seeking advice for a party or a wedding to stop by for a consultation. Blooms for You Floral Boutique does basic and specialty pieces for funerals or any other occasions, but their big mission is to create arrangements that truly hold the essence of the person. Tasha understands that even a specific colored ribbon can make the receiver feel that the gift is connected to the giver, making the arrangement that much more special.

Spending most of her time at the boutique with her son compels Tasha to make her florist as homey as possible. Furthermore, customer service is at the top her list which makes her a huge fan of challenges for any project.

If you are looking for a place where your needs are respected and your arrangements are perfected, come to Blooms for You Floral Boutique. Tasha and her friendly staff will make absolute sure that you feel at home there and leave with the unique arrangement that captures the essence in a way that no words can. Open 5 days a week for your convenience Tuesday thru Friday 10:30 AM to 6 PM and Saturdays 10 AM to 3 PM. Like them on f and visit them at BloomsForYouFloralBoutique.com

Bella Thorne suddenly becomes 'Famous in Love' in new Freeform series

By Jay Bobbin

Freeform hopes you'll fall so in love with one of its newest series, the network is offering the whole first season at once.

Based on Rebecca Serle's novel and starring Bella Thorne ("Big Love," "Shake It Up") as an everyday collegian who suddenly gets her big acting break in a franchise-launching movie, "Famous in Love" debuts on the basic-cable network Tuesday, April 18 ... but those who don't want to wait for the next nine episodes won't have to. Taking a page from the Netflix playbook, they'll all be available that day on digital platforms including Freeform.com, the Freeform app and Freeform on Demand.

Paige (Thorne) not only lands a showcase role through an open casting call, she also gets popular young actor Rainer Devon (played by Carter Jenkins) as a leading man, perhaps off-screen as well as on. Charlie DePew and Georgie Flores play her encouraging roommates, with Perrey Reeves ("Entourage") as Rainer's controlling mother and Keith Powers as a fellow actor and romantic rival. The new show's executive producers include I. Marlene King, whose "Pretty Little Liars" returns to Freeform that evening to start its final chapters.

"It's more of a challenge than some other roles I've played," Thorne says, "because I have to be a little bit more naive to everything, and it's really hard when you're kind of jaded — which is what we will see Paige become, jaded in the fact that she gets screwed over so many times in the series that she becomes a little bit more guarded and a little bit more in the Hollywood lifestyle. It's a little bit harder for me to go completely back and go, 'But doesn't she know that this is going to ...?' No, she doesn't know. She's never had this experience before, so it's really fun to play somebody that's really not very much like me at all."

King admits that after the soon-to-end "Pretty Little Liars" and its intricate plotting, "I thought (this) show was going to be easier to write because I didn't have all that mythology to worry about, but it's actually quite more difficult. It really is, it's just as twisty and curvy as 'Pretty Little Liars,' but the twists are all dramatic and just really more soapy turns that come along the way, all character-driven. It was really a different beast to try to tame, but I think that we really found our voice, and this is such a great cast."

Freeform's mantra is to appeal to a demographic it terms "Becomers," and "Famous in Love" holds to that by tracing the path of the person Paige will become. "The media in the show will make her seem like she's this or she's that or she's whatever, but she's not," Thorne reasons. "She's just a young girl who is thrown into this business, kind of has no idea what she's doing — and just because she's photographed with somebody doesn't mean she's dating them. And I think we'll come (into) that in a lot of the series, because that happens all the time."

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN

Back to Basics: Apple Pie
 By Wolfgang Puck

Two of my all-time favorite after-dinner treats combine in one perfect dessert: apple pie. It's a basic that all home cooks should have in their repertoire, a recipe you can rely on whenever you desire sweet comfort food.

Good pie pastry is surprisingly easy to make, especially now that just about everyone has a food processor. The stainless-steel blade combines flour, sugar, and salt (plus, if you like, some sweet spice to flavor the pastry) in just a few seconds of pulsing the machine on and off. Then, less than a minute more of processing to incorporate chilled butter, egg yolks, and cream gives you a rich dough that will turn into the most beautiful, tender crust for your pie.

Finally, you have to chill the dough for several hours to firm it up. If you don't have time, though, you can always feel free to substitute store-bought rounds of pie crust sold in the refrigerated case in most markets. They'll give good results, too.

As for the filling, much of your success comes down to selecting the right apples. You need a variety that tastes both sweet and tangy, with a texture that will hold its shape during baking, winding up at once both soft and still just slightly firm to the bite. My favorite with these characteristics is the widely available Granny Smith variety. You could also use such apples as Jonathan, Fuji, Winesap, and Pippin. Really, there are so many different kinds of apples for sale in farmers' markets and even supermarkets these days that it's fun to taste and experiment.

One special trick I like to do when making an apple pie filling is to saute the apples with butter and sugar to give them a caramel sauce. You won't believe how much more complex and flavorful your pie will taste for taking this little extra step.

Once your pie dough and apples are ready, you're just over an hour away from a freshly baked pie. Rolling out the dough and filling the pie takes just a few minutes. Don't worry if it doesn't look magazine-perfect; rustic-style pies that actually look homemade can be even more appealing. Take special care, though, to bake your pie long enough, so that the crust turns a deep golden brown. Too many people remove their pies from the oven too soon, depriving themselves of the pleasurable texture and flavor of fully cooked pastry to complement the filling.

So give my apple pie recipe a try soon. First, make it one weekend for a Saturday dinner party or Sunday family meal. Once you've got the hang of this very basic recipe, you'll be preparing apple pies on weeknights, too!

GRANNY SMITH APPLE PIE WITH CINNAMON CRUST

- Makes 1 pie, 8 servings
- CINNAMON PIE DOUGH:
- 3-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
 - 2 tablespoons ground cinnamon
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 3/4 pound unsalted butter, well chilled, cut into 24 pieces
 - 4 large cage-free egg yolks
 - 1/4 cup heavy cream
- APPLE FILLING
- 7 tablespoons unsalted butter
 - 12 medium organic Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored, and cut into 1/2-inch wedges
 - 1/4 cup granulated sugar
 - 1/4 cup dark brown sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 - 2 tablespoons Calvados (apple brandy) or applejack, optional
- GLAZE AND GARNISHES
- 1 large cage-free egg, beaten
 - Vanilla ice cream or whipped cream (optional)
- First, make the dough. In a food processor fitted with the stainless-steel blade, combine the flour, sugar, cinnamon, and salt. Pulse the machine on and off a few times. Scatter the butter evenly inside. Process until the mixture resembles coarse meal. In a small bowl, whisk together the egg yolks and cream. With the machine running, pour the mixture through the feed tube and continue processing until the dough comes together. Carefully remove from the processor, wrap in plastic wrap, and refrigerate for at least 2 hours or overnight.

For the filling, melt 6 tablespoons of the butter in a large skillet over medium-high heat. When the butter begins to turn brown, add the apples and sprinkle with the sugars and cinnamon. Cook, stirring frequently, until the sugars have turned thick, dark brown, and bubbly, 10 to 15 minutes. The apples should still be firm. Stir in the Calvados, if using. Line a baking pan with aluminum foil and spread the apple mixture in it to cool to room temperature.

Meanwhile, remove the dough from the refrigerator and leave at room temperature for 30 to 40 minutes. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees F.

Cut the ball of dough into two halves, one slightly larger than the other. Place the smaller half cut side down on a lightly floured work surface. With a floured rolling pin, roll it out to an even circle 11 inches in diameter. Gently fold in half or quarters and transfer to a 9-inch pie pan. Unfold and gently ease it into the contours of the pan. Roll out the larger half of dough to a circle about 12 inches in diameter and gently fold in half or quarters.

Fill the lined pie pan with the apples. Dot with the remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Carefully unfold the remaining pastry circle over the filling. Tuck the edges of the top pastry under the rim of the bottom pastry and press down with your fingers to seal together and decoratively flute the edges. With the tip of a small, sharp knife, cut 3 vents about 2 inches long in the center of the top crust.

Place the pie on a baking sheet and bake in the lower third of the oven for 30 minutes. Reduce the heat to 375 degrees F. and bake for 20 minutes longer. Remove from the oven, brush the top pastry with the beaten egg, return to the oven, and continue baking until the crust is deep golden brown, 5 to 10 minutes longer.

Serve hot, warm, or at room temperature, accompanied by vanilla ice cream or whipped cream, if you like.
